THE VOICE OF SPRING.

BY ALICE HEMANS.

I come, I come! you have called me long,
I come o'er the mountains with light and song;
So may I trace my steps o'er the warching earth,
And bring the sun to the shadowed earth,
By the prairies strown in the shadowy grass,
By the green leaves opening at I pass.

I have the lark in my heart, and all its tease forth,
The lark is out on the wing, and all its noise,
And the reindeer bounds through the pasture
With a noise like a fawn's.

And the lark has a fringe of song,
And the noise looks bright where my step has been.

From the woods and founts I have leaped the trees,

They are sweeping o'er the silvery streams,

They are dashing down from the mountains,

They are ringing spray on the forest boughs,

They are bursting fresh from their sparry caves,
